Topic: Design Thinking by Craig Turner (A process used by designers to inspire innovation)

Craig Turner, the executive director of Edge Innovation Hub, has a Bachelor's degree in Fine Art and Visual Communication Design, as well a Master's degree in Design Research and Development. He has taught Design, Brand Development and Innovation Process at the Ohio State University.

The Edge Innovation Hub (founded in 2018 by Jim Grote, the founder of Donatos) is a center for creativity, where forward looking companies can innovate at the edge of possibility. They work with sibling companies such as Donatos and The Grote Company to help them develop opportunities around innovation. They're also a home for food related start-up companies such as Platter and BeeHex. BeeHex was founded as a result of a NASA project to automate personalized meals for astronauts on deep-space missions and they're currently developing a 3D food printer for the US military so soldiers can print custom meal bars in the field.
